Editorial: Organized Chaos?

Gregory R. Wise, MD

The challenges facing us today are enormous and possibly overwhelming: antibiotic-resistant super bugs, Zika virus and birth defects, gun violence, the heroin and opioid epidemic, a Supreme Court vacancy that could last a year, national and global economic uncertainty, unresolved illegal immigration, and of course terrorism (which apparently doesn't seem to have any hope for a cure). All of this is on top of a completely dysfunctional and bitterly divisive political system. A sad commentary on our social advancement is that one-third of the population of our largest state, California, is on Medi-Cal. Whoever 'wins' the Presidential election this fall will not have easy solutions, despite the campaign rhetoric, which often proffers easy answers in 10-second sound bites...READ MORE

However, Avedis Donebedian, MD, MPH, considered by many to be the father of healthcare quality improvement, and who developed the "structure, process, outcomes" quality improvement formulation, introduced a "heart-felt" people-element to the essentials of delivering the best healthcare quality when he made the profound statement that LOVE was the vital, most critical factor...READ MORE

Many physicians are interested in improving safety and quality, particularly as they assume roles in either medical staff or administrative positions such as Director, Vice President of Medical Affairs (VPMA) or Chief Medical Officer (CMO). However, many lack the tools or training necessary to engage in their facility's quality and patient safety activities. Active participation in ACMQ can provide an excellent introduction into quality and patient safety by utilizing suggested resource materials, webinars, and Quality Improvement Workshops...READ MORE

Population Health Management Innovations - Aligning Payers and ACOs

July 12, 2016, 2:00-3:00 PM ET

America's Health Insurance Plans (AHIP) are offering a free webinar on July 12, 2016, on "Population Health Management Innovations - Aligning Payers and ACOs", developed with the support of our colleagues at EXL.

Provider reimbursements are rapidly moving from fee-for-service arrangements to value-based payments, emphasizing quality outcomes and appropriate management of the total population. Managing these dynamics is now part of the new care management ecosystem for patient-centered medical homes and accountable care organizations (ACOs). Payers, providers and now pay-viders have organized themselves in innovative ways that foster improved outcomes at the lowest cost. ACOs must now incorporate advanced analytics and care management capabilities to enhance the health status of consumers while maintaining relevant opportunities in revenue optimization.
